CODEPEN

- Styling web components!

- Issues with :first-child/:last-child with slotted content

- Simple slotted styles example

- Slotted animation & keyframe scope

- Testing focus-within states for web components

Lifecycle: constructor

The definition for the class; always starts by calling super() so that the prototype chain is established.

At this stage, the element is not connected to the DOM so we can't access the element's attributes yet.

Things we can do here:

- attach a shadow root

- define the DOM structure

- attach some CSS